

Private lessons can address certain technique areas with the dancer that can not always be addressed in class. A private lesson is a hands on, one on one session for a half hour or one hour with an individual student and an instructor. Classroom work is suited for the entire class. Some dancers may need to go slower or need to have a technique broken down more for them. Private lessons are specifically designed for the individual student, which in turn will help the dancer`s knowledge and improve their technique. It will also help improve the dancer`s self-esteem which transfers into their class work.
